Rights of Strikers Defined. Some months ago the Hamilton-frown Shoe Co. of St. Louis applied to the St. Louis circuit court for an inunction restraining strikes from la any way interfering with working em-

The injunction was granted. The strikers claimed that if any offense had been committed, it was a criminal one, entitling them to a trial by jury, and that a courf of equity had as jurisdiction over the matter, and appealed to the supreme court.

With the full concurrence of the supreme court, Judge Brace rendered the decision, holding that while a court of equity has no jurisdiction over criminal proceedings, yet an injunction to profeet property from injury is within the scope of authority of such a tribunal. Defining the rights of employees, he says:

"The injunction in this case does not hinder the defendants from doing anything that they claim they have a right to do. They are free men, and have the right to quit the employ of plaintiffs whenever they see fit to do so, and no one can prevent them, and whether their act of quitting is wise or unwise, jilst or tinjust, it is nobody's, business but their own. And they have a right to use fair persuasion to indued others to join them in quitting. But when fair persuasion is exhausted, they have no right to resort to force or violence. The law will protect their freedom and their rights, but it will not permit them to affect the freedom and rights of others. The same law which guarantees the defendants their right to quit the employment of the plaintiffs at their will and pleasured also guarantees the other will and pleasured also guarantees the quit the employment of the plaintiffs at their will and pleasure also guarantees the other employes to remain at their will and pleasure The defendants are their own masters, but they are not the masters of the other employes, and not only are they not their masters, but they are not even their guardians."

He told the girls about the struggles of the women of the early days-during the revolution and before that time. He told the boys what good citizenship meant, and urged them to be always faithful and true to "Old Glory," and to stand by the public schools. The Beauty of Charity.

The Daughters of the Confederacy of St. Louis gave their fifth annual ball at the merchants' exchange Thanksgiving night. This ball has come to be looked upon by many as the crowning event of the society season. It is trampling under their feet the fallen not, however, merely as a society event that it is known. It brings together, it is true, gallant men and beautiful women, but with the beauty of woman is blended the beauty of charity. The proceeds of the ball are donated every year to the ex-confederate home at Higginsville, which is under the charge of the Daughters of the Confederacy. The home was built by them at an outlay of $40,000 five years ago. It takes nearly $13,000 a year to maintain it, and as a means of defraying a portion of the expense the happy idea of an annual ball was conceived. It is an event, therefore, in which pleasure, fashion and charity are equally blended. There is one other feature which gives it a distinctive place in St. Louis social life. It was originated by women, as the idea of the ex-confederates' home was originated by them. There is a peculiar fitness in the fact. As the daughters of the south ministered to the sufferings of the sons of the south thirty years ago, so the daughters of the south minister to the wants of the sons of the south to-day.

GENERAL MASSACRE

he Horrible Work Done at Balburt, is Ar-meals, by Kurds Under the Sultan's Or-ders—Men, Women and Children Mar-dered in the Most Brutal Manner—Inde-scribable Outrages Perpetrated Upon Helpless Females.

NEW YORK, Dec. 2.—The Sun says: The following descriptions of scenes accompanying the recent massacres in the village of Baiburt, in Armenia, is contained in a letter received here from an eyewitness. It was written toward the latter part of October: Sunday, October 15, was the first day when the alarm of a general massacre began to spread. Saturday af-ternoon the dismal news of the advaries of 500 armed Lazes reached us. Sunday about 1,000 Turks of Baiburt and its vicinity joined the Lazes and marched from all directions on the Armenian villages.

On Monday, October 14, the first attack was made on the village of Lusshonk, five or six miles from the town of Baiburt. There were about seventy Turkish women with packhorses for carrying away the plunder.

The villagers of Lusshonk had taken refuge in the school building, trembling and despairing.

The Lazes and others promptly began to seize the cattle and sheep of the Armenians. Securing them out of harm's way, they rifled and set on fire the buildings. Then they attacked the schoolhouse. The helpless Armenians inside, men, women and children, shrank under a hail storm of bullets. It was a dark night and many of them fell killed and wounded.

"For God's sake spare our lives and take all we have," cried the unfortunate people, but their cries for mercy seemed to more infuriate the butchers. The schoolhouse was set on fire and men, women and children rushed out, dead and wounded. A most horrible scene was enacted in front of the schoolhouse. The infuria'ed Luzes and other marauders. under the lead of the most fanatical chieftains from the neighboring villages, surrounded their victims and began to massacre them in cold blood. The son of Haji Khumri, a notorious robber, seized a young man, and after robbing him of his clothes, ordered the Lazes to fire on him. The young man was shot dead on the spot. Others seized the brother of the first victim, and easting him down on the threshold of the schoolhouse, slaughtered him like a sheep and pierced his dead body with daggers.

Moussa, the son of Birinji, from Moush and Gars, jumped at Nahbed Aslanagan and taking hold of him, exclaimed: Come here, dog of an infidel; I was looking for you. Come, I will show you how I will kill a dog like you." Saying this, he plunged his kama nto his victim and with several turns lisemboweled the unfortunate man. Thus the flendish work of carnage was carried on with heartrending cruelty. At last the leaders of the mob gave the command to separate the men and the women into separate groups under the walls. Five young men, the flower of the village, were secured as victims and burned alive before the eyes of their relatives.

Others of the mob robbed the women of all their clothes, committing outrages on them, cutting their hair, spitting in their faces, etc. They were not satisfied with outrages but killed a girl 15 years old, several women and three children from 3 to 5 years of age. They killed also Gadarine, the wife of Channers Avakian, who was in an advanced state of pregnancy, and opened her abdomen with a most cruel fero-

The scenes of horror were repeated in several other places in the same village and in other villages. The Mo hammedan women accompaning the hordes of maurauders carried away loads of plunder.

The Armenians had given no provo cation for the massacre. The leaders proclaimed openly that they had orders from the sultan to exterminate the Armenians, and were to have their property as a reward for their services to the government. It is impossible to give a correct estimate of the loss of life and property, as many villages are now laid waste and the inhabitants are missing.

It is not necessary to dwell on the desecrations perpetrated in the churches and the outrages committed on women and young girls. It makes one's heart bleed to see the state of things. The people of the vicinity are in a state of horror, and there are rumors of fresh massacres.

Strong at Guantanamo SANTIAGO DE CUBA, Nov. 24, via Key West, Fla., Dec. 2.-Col. Rotger, with a Spanish column 1,000 strong, arrived at Guantanamo on the 19th inst., after being out on war operations for fo or five days. When the Spaniara arrived in the suburbs of Yate-ras, they met the rebel leader Gil and his party, who im-mediately attacked the van and rear guards of the Spaniards, firing for more than an hour and a half. The column arrested the fire, but at last were obliged to retreat to Guantanamo. The Spaniards had ten killed and four wounded and left several prisoners in the hands of the rebels. The insurgents had four killed and

BONALD KENNEDY, of ROXBURY, MASS., Has discovered in one of our common pasture weeds a remedy that cures every kind of Humor, from the worst Scrofula down to a common Pimple.

He has tried it in over eleven hundred eases, and never failed except in two cases (both thunder humor.) He has now in his possession over two hundred certificates of its value, all within twenty miles of Boston. Send postal card for book.

A benefit is always experienced from the first bottle, and a perfect cure is warranted when the right quantity is taken.

When the lungs are affected it causes shooting pains, like needles passing through them; the same with the Liver or Bowels. This is caused by the ducts being stopped, and always disappears in a week after taking it. Read the label.

If the stomach is foul or billious it will cause squeamish feelings at first.

No change of diet ever necessary. Bat
the best you can get, and enough of it.
Dose, one tablespoonful in water at bedtime. Sold by all Druggists.
